

Breast Cancer Screening Guidelines

1. Women aged 40-49 should consider annual mammograms depending on individual risk factors.
2. Women aged 50-74 are advised to undergo mammography screening every two years.
3. Clinical breast exams should be performed every 1-3 years for women aged 25-39 and annually for women aged 40 and older.
4. Breast self-awareness is encouraged for all adult women.
5. Screening MRI is recommended annually for women with a 20-25% or greater lifetime risk of breast cancer.
6. Early detection improves survival and reduces treatment complexity.

These guidelines are general recommendations and may vary depending on patient history and risk profile.
